CHAPTER XXVIII.

FROM the shadows of the trees on the further side of the river, Craig, with strained eyes, watched Quest's struggle. He saw him reach Lenora, watched him struggle to the bank with her, waited until he had lifted her on to his horse. Then he turned slowly around and faced the one country in the world where freedom was still possible for him. He looked into the wall of darkness, penetrated only at one spot by a little blaze of light. Slowly, with his arm through the bridle of his horse, he limped toward it. As he drew nearer and discovered its source he hesitated. The light came through the uncourtained windows of a saloon, three long, yellow shafts illuminating the stunted shrubs and sandy places. Craig kept in the shadow between them and drew a little nearer, the laughter of women, the tired men and the lame horse stole reluctantly a little nearer. Craig listened once more wearily. It was home he longed for so much—and rest. Even when he reached the door he hesitated and instead of entering stood back among the shadows. If only he could find any other sort of shelter!

Inside, the scene was ordinary enough. There was a long bar, against which were lounging half a dozen typical Mexican cowpunchers. There was a small space cleared for dancing, at the further end of which two performers were making weird and vehement music. Three girls were dancing with cowboys, not ungraciously considering the state of the floor and the frequent discords in the music. One of them—the prettiest—stepped abruptly and pushed her partner away from her.

"You have drunk too much, Joe!"

ANOTHER WOMAN ENTHUSIASTIC ABOUT VAR-NE-SIS

Says Simple Remedy Removed Rheumatism of Many Years' Standing

Men and women from all sections are adding their names to the long list of recoveries brought about by Var-ne-sis, and every day is a busy day at the Var-ne-sis headquarters.

W. A. Varney said: "Var-ne-sis is a simple vegetable remedy and does not contain salicylate of soda, iodides, mercury or the ordinary ingredients so often given for rheumatism."

"I suffered from rheumatism on and off for fifteen years, and for five years I was unable to go up or down stairs without pain. My feet, knees, hands and hips were very stiff, and painful and for one long year I was in constant pain, being in bed for three months at a time."

"Physicians said I had rheumatism of the joints, but in spite of treatment did not seem to improve. My fingers were deformed so that they were drawn to one side. A friend of mine who used Var-ne-sis persuaded me to try it with the result that today I am free from this terrible disease and am now enjoying good health."

"I think it to the interest of every rheumatic sufferer to secure Var-ne-sis for a try, certainly does wonder."

W. A. Varney, Discoverer of Var-ne-sis.

Among those who connected to talk for publication was Mrs. C. H. Parker of 10 Woodland St., Everett, Mass. She said:
